REVIEW

"From the co-producer of Soldier and Farewell Darkness, David Bianchi, comes "Outspoken: Los Angeles" a powerful and compassionate documentary."

Marisa Darnel -Artist Interviews Magazine.

SUMMARY

"Outspoken – Los Angeles" is a feature length documentary that focuses on both Veterans and civilians in Los Angeles that are fighting the American occupation of Iraq.

It is not a documentary designed to find a solution for a very grand and global catastrophe; but designed to give those who dedicate their lives and are affected (personally) by this war an opportunity to speak out to a larger community about their personal views and struggles.

"Outspoken - Los Angeles" will reach into the motives of how and why. Why are we outspoken? What lives deep in us that makes us feel as if we must? These are real stories of real people telling their truth. Outspoken will blur the lines between character and political documentary examining the human side of protest.

DAVID BIANCHI

WRITER / DIRECTOR / PRODUCER

Originally from Rochester, NY, now based in Hollywood, CA He holds a BFA in Theatre and film from Arizona State University where he co-developed their only film club where he was President and graduated Magna Cum Laude. He is a member of both the Screen Actors Guild (SAG) and American Federation Television Recording Artists (AFTRA).

Most recently he produced the feature film Farewell Darkness (Daniel J Pico - 2008) that has currently sold 5 Eastern European territories and Japan (2008) and will world premiere in Chicago at the prestigious Gene Siskel Theatre in 2008. Farewell Darkness has already garnered critical acclaim.

"Farewell Darkness is an intense and gripping story...an outstanding independent film."
– Marisa Darnel – Artist Interviews Magazine

He has directed and produced numerous short films including the critically acclaimed film Soldier (2006 – Daniel J Pico), which has been selected by 12 domestic film festivals, garnered wins at Queens Intl. (NYC) and San Tan (PHX,AZ), and was recently picked up for international distribution by OUAT! Media (Toronto, Canada).

"Soldier" is raw, visceral, furious and brilliant. Pico and Bianchi have crafted a perfect film....Soldier is the #2 best unseen film of 2006!"
– Phil Hall – Film Threat Magazine

"A+...David Bianchi...reciting the lines with such intensity and emotion, the goose-bumps won't leave your neck until the piece is over."
– Taste Like Chicken.com

"Outspoken – Los Angeles" is David's directorial debut as a documentarian and is interested in numerous social issues and hopes to always create cinema that entertains and raises questions simultaneously.
